Northwestern Air Adds Flight to Kelowna Schedule

July 25, 2013 (Red Deer, AB) - Due to strong demand, Northwestern Air will add a Monday flight to their Kelowna schedule beginning August 5th, 2013. With this expansion, travellers can now choose from convenient flights to Kelowna from Red Deer Airport 6 days a week.

"We've seen strong demand for Kelowna" said Tomas Chlumecky, General Manager, Northwestern Air. "Seats on our 5 day per week existing schedule were starting to become limited so we are pleased to add another day and continue to serve the region with another flight to Kelowna."

In addition, Northwestern Air continues to provide convenient service to Abbotsford, 4 days per week with a stop in Kelowna, and direct flights to Fort McMurray 3 days per week.

"This expanded Kelowna service from Red Deer Airport will give Central Alberta residents a little more travel flexibility and provides growth on a highly demanded link to the very popular Okanagan Valley, said RJ Steenstra, CEO, Red Deer Airport Authority.
